Gospel Commentary. "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed the smallest of all the seeds, but when it grows up it becomes a tree, so that the birds of the air dwell in its branches" (Gospel).

So, the Church from humble beginnings in underground Catacombs has stretched out to the remotest ends of foreign lands, a living shelter for man as he flees upward from the earth; a miraculous leaven transforming fallen human culture into the Divine.

Yes, the Life of Christ is a leaven hiding, as it were, from the time of our Baptism in the three measures of faith, hope and charity until all of our humanity is leavened.

Like the first Christians, we, too, are to become a pattern to all, so that our neighbors in Macedonia and Achaia (Epistle), like birds of the air, will come and dwell in the branches of the Church.

Excerpted from My Sunday Missal, Confraternity of the Precious Blood

It Is My Opinion The World Will Not End Tonight

It is my opinion, as I write this on the evening of November 8, that the world will not end tonight. If you are able to read this on the following Sunday, you will know that I was right. If I am wrong, nothing made of matter really matters anymore. That is the whole point to thinking about the end of the world, or "apocalypse." Every material consideration, concern, obsession and distraction will vanish when all creation is subsumed into the Creator, so that God will be "all in all" (1 Corinthians 15:28).

Our Lord warned that speculation about the end times is futile. He knew that there would be fanatics and demagogues stirring the crowds with claims that the end is just around the corner. We should not go "running after them" (Luke 17:23). False evangelists find that sort of thing good for business, but Dr. Billy Graham, a far more estimable representative of the Evangelical school, said it is hard not to think that we may be approaching the end of the world when you see all the terrible portents these days. Others indicate that it seems we are moving piece by piece toward World War III. Given technology, such a conflict could be hard to distinguish from the consummation of all that is, at least on this planet.

Secular thinkers may mock apocalyptic theology, but they have their own version of it in dire predictions about economic disaster (recall the Y2K hysteria of 2000) and global warming/cooling/change—or whatever may be its new nom du jour. There may be substance to some of that, but it is unscientific of scientists to treat a hypothesis as an absolute conclusion. Then ecology becomes its own theology, and anyone who disagrees is a heretic. Even if everything were to be melting or freezing, anticipation of the end of the world would not be a cause of reverence, but of anxiety. Instead of saying "Come, Lord Jesus!" the atheist cannot help but moan, "Oh my God!!"

Jesus says, "Be not anxious about tomorrow" (Matthew 6:34), because he is in control. Without him, we are out of control.

As William Butler Yeats wrote in The Second Coming:

*Things fall apart; the center cannot hold;
Mere anarchy is loosed upon the world,
The blood-dimmed tide is loosed, and everywhere
The ceremony of innocence is drowned;
The best lack all conviction, while the worst are full of passionate intensity.*

When things seem to be spinning out of control, just look to Jesus on the Cross. There is the love that made the world and that will bring it back to him. Stat crux dum volvitur orbis. "The Cross is steady while the world is turning."

Fr. G. Rutler.

*If you are new to the chapel, Welcome.
New parishioners please consult Father Safreed before the reception of sacraments.*

Remember, also, Lord, Your servants and handmaids below who are gone hence before us, marked with the sign of faith, and sleep the sleep of peace. To them, Lord and to all that rest in Christ, grant, we implore You a place of happiness, light and peace through the same Christ our Lord. Amen.
